Washington, D. C., Dec. -Memup their jobs. Then, after an interval of nearly a year, came the new decision that merit was to rule regardment reached on all appointments besion that merit was to rule regardless of the time the postmaster had held office, and that a congressman's recommendation was to count for naught unless it coincided with the wishes of the postoffice department.

President Backed Up.

That the department might disreconstrained to fight the confirmation lections. No disagreement in this is of the old postmaster should he be reappointed, there was a rapid change of front, and the candidate endorsed by the Illinois delegation was appointed. Concerted action by the delegations of other states will probably result in putting the postoffice patronage back in the hands of the representatives of states where they are of the same party faith as the administration, and in the hands of the political representatives of the president in states controlled by the Democracy.

Home for Geological Survey.

Senator Teller has introduced a bill to provide a new home for the geological survey to cost approximately $1,000,000. This will, if passed, give Washington another stately structure for governmental affairs. The bill provides for a committee consisting of the secretary of the interior, superintendent of the capital and the super-Intendent of public buildings and grounds, to acquire by purchase, conment at a critical time. But barring Bridge at the Capital.

Washington is "slow" in a great mediately fall victim to the bridge mania was because it had better and more wholesome things to do. Still, through New York influences, bridge is now thoroughly established here. Yet those who mix the greatest amount of brains with their entertaining do not need to have recourse to it. Take, for example, a recent entertainment by Mrs. Barney, which took the form of a small tea in her studio, so that her friends could see her latest art work, and some recently added tapestries and objects d'art. The studio was he will share, at his mother's option, lighted by myriad candles, and in the the fortune left by Judge Nicholas tries and objects d'art. The studio was balcony Miss Koechling, accompanied balcony Miss Koechling, accompanied Longworth, with his two sisters, Mrs. by Mr. Robinson, on the organ, played Buckner Wallingford and the Visa few appropriate selections.

Music After Dinner.

Mrs. Barney's dinners are always almost exclusive after-dinner entertainment. The last dinner given by Lady Susan Townley was followed by a most interesting talk and discussion "Italian Gardens." Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth always provides some musical enjoyment, and many others ars prolonging their evenings in like manner, thus giving variety to the everincreasing habit of bridge-after-dinners-which some enjoy; but many who do not are drawn into playing to oblige the hostess, and so pass many weary and expensive hours.

Disgrace of Depew.

Chauncey M. Depew, the junior senator from New York, the high reveller in the wild carousal of insured financiering, presents. a most pitiable sight as he wandered about the 'Millionaires' Club" the opening days of congress. No longer does he seek to be the cynosure of all eyes, nor siddle up to each passer-by with a beaming smile and a chortle. Chauncey was always the most approachable of men; in fact, this trait led to his fall from the pedestal of probity. His face is haggard, his smile wan and his step has lost its sprightliness of assurance. His assurance has departed together with the thousands of dollars he drew from the funds of widows and orphans for advising recent chief executive of Ecuador, Senthem how to lend money to himself and his bankrupt enterprises. It is here, and the other, Senor Pardo, wife even broadly hinted that his election of the Peruvian minister, who succeeds to his second term in the senate was secured by his using the official posi

President Is Delighted.

Wasington has been keyed to the ighest pitch of social excitement over the long deferred announcement of the engagement of Miss Alice Roosevelt to Nicholas Longworth, and now enters the princess into a new role and witness the jubilation in the presidential family. If ever two people are openly, sincerely delighted to get their daughter safely married, the president and his lady are the distinguished pair. But their joy will not be complete until the day after, for things are so uncertain. Just now there is an epidemic of scarlet fever invading the most modish homes in the capital, and it would be just like Archie or Quen-
